

1. Cut pages into TWO STRIPS along the long gray lines. DO NOT cut the short gray lines dividing the pages.

4. Fold the cover at the spine like the cover above. When you crease the card, be careful not to scratch it or the ink may scratch off.

7. Now to glue the two halves together. Make sure you have them facing the correct directions to keep the story in order.

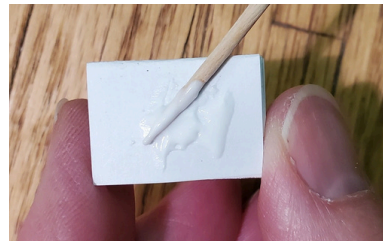

10. Clamp the folded pages together. Using rubber cement or a similar glue (a good craft glue can work), follow manufacture's instructions and put glue on the spine. Allow to dry.

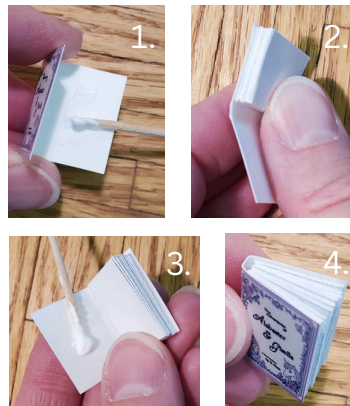

2. Cut the cover out along its edges as pictured above.

5. Put the folded pages inside the cover and see if the pages need to be trimmed at the top or bottom. You should be able to trim the top or bottom edges all together, if needed, with a sharp pair of scissors.

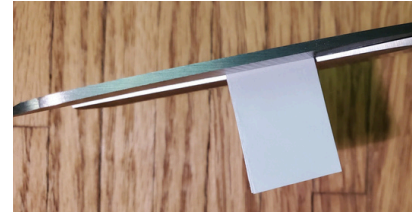

8. Place a glue (that's good with paper) on one of the blank sides that needs to be glued to the other blank side.

12. Using a glue (that's good with paper), spread glue on the back cover, align the last page to the back cover and press together. Repeat with the front cover and first page.

3. Fold the two strips of pages as seen above. Make sure to start the folds the correct way. Use the gray marks between pages as your folding guide.

6. Check the edges again inside the cover. Re-trim the pages or cover if necessary. Only cut short edges if needed, not the longer edges, or you will ruin the book.

9. Align and stick the two facing blank pages together. Make sure they're facing the right way.

13. Enjoy your new mini book!!
